If you don't like the fabric, you won't look at the clothes.

How would you describe this Texfi knitted plaid? Would you call it bold? Or handsome? Or terribly English? We would call it all of these. But we would also call it an accurate plaid, an uncompromising plaid. Behind these last adjectives is, perhaps, the most far reaching innovation to affect fashion.

It's an electronic system which Texfi helped develop called Response. It makes it possible for you to enjoy plaids, tweeds, herringbones, or any other design in our knits, without compromising the designer's feelings by even a fraction.

Response reduces the time between a designer's

Response reduces the time between a designer original inspiration and its appearance in our knitted fabrics from roughly 10 weeks, to 10 minutes.

This means that we can not only knit a plaid from the original design in 30 minutes, but that we can also knit variations and refinements of the original design in an equally short time.

So, if we want to knit our windowpanes larger, or change the color of our checks from green to rust, we don't have to wonder whether its worth waiting 10 weeks to see a result. We don't have to compromise. We go right shead and do it.

This remarkable system is part of a comprehensive program at Texfi which is geared to your response: To make you like our fabrics and the clothes that Introducing the Honda Civic. Away to fight the high cost of learning.

One thing's for sure. It costs a bundle to get through college these days. Some say more than $20,000 for four years. And it's likely to get worse.

We can't do much about the cost of getting through school, transversely mounted, overhead But we have done something about the cost of getting around while you're there. It's called the Civic" and it boasts nice math: You can buy one for $2150° and get up to 30 miles to a gallon.

But don't let the low price fool you. This is one economy car you'll need no apologies for. Consider: front wheel drive. rack and pinjon steering, independent four-wheel suspension, nower front disc brakes, and four-speed synchromesh transmission. They're all standard. whether you buy the two-door sedan or the hatchback. So is the powerplant; a totally new cam engine that's calculated to keep you in front of the class. The point is this: we say the Honda Civic will give you a remarkable ride for your money. And since experience is the best tencher, all we ask is a test drive. If we make the grade, you'll buy a Honda, With the money you save you can take another course.
